Doris J. Scott, 88, of Parker, Colo., and formerly of Grinnell, died in Colorado on Dec. 30, 2012.

Funeral services were held Jan. 7, 2013, at Horan & McConaty Family Chapel in Denver, followed by a private interment at Fort Logan National Cemetery.

Doris Baustian Scott was born March 24, 1924, in Poweshiek County near Grinnell, the second of five girls born to Florence Cogley and Delmar Baustian.

Doris received her early education in a Sheridan rural school and graduated from the Grinnell High School in 1941. Immediately after graduation, she started her secretarial career working at the J.H. Neil Creamery Company in downtown Tama.

Doris moved to Denver in 1948 and worked as an executive secretary for the Hallack and Howard Lumber Company, Frigidaire Sales, a division of General Motors, and the McKesson Corporation, retiring in 1988.

She compiled and published "One Century In The United States," a Bastian/Baustian history, in 1963. She also took up flying and earned her private pilot license at Clinton Aviation at Stapleton Airport. Her other hobbies included ballroom dancing, playing pool and crossword puzzles.

Doris is survived by her sister Helen Fontinel of Buford, Ga., and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, John E. Scott, a 30-year Sr. Master Sgt. in the United States Air Force serving during World War II and the Germany occupation twice after; and three sisters, Ruth Steuhm, Mildred Johns and Shirley O'Hara.
