Elliott Shadbolt was born March 15, 1843, on what was then the frontier, in Lapeer county, Michigan, and died March 20, 1925, at Grinnell, Iowa, being eighty-two years and five days old.

In 1861 his parents moved to Darien Center, New York, where he resided until 1854 when he went with them to Fond du Lac county, Wisconsin. In 1861 he answered Lincoln's call for three-year volunteers, by enlisting in Company I of the 5th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry. His regiment was sent east in July of that year and was employed in construction of fortifications about Washington during the remainder of the year. During the eventful years following he participated with it in the campaign on the Peninsula and in the battles at Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. He was wounded at Rappahannock Station and was later given a furlough. He returned to the Army in April of 1864 and was with his regiment in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania and Cold Harbor, and in the siege of Petersburg.

When he was mustered out he went to Scott county, Iowa, where he lived until his marriage May 14, 1873, to Isabella M. Brownlie. He brought his bride to a farm in Madison township of this county where he spent the remainder of his active years. In 1902 he retired from the farm to the home in Grinnell which he occupied until his death. His first wife passed away December 31, 1915. He was married again on April 11, 1918, to Mrs. Jennie Blood who survives him. He also leaves one son, Alexander, from his first marriage, and a grandson, Edward, who reside in Chamberlain, South Dakota. Of his brothers and sisters, three still live, John W. of Denver, Colorado, Rowland A., of Chicago, and Ellen L. Chilton, of Frazee, Minnesota.

Mr. Shadbolt joined the Baptist church at Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, in his thirteenth year, and has been a communicant at the Baptist and Christian churches as local convenience determined ever since. The marked purity of his life amid the temptations of the camps won for him the nickname of Chaplain among his comrades.

Mr. Shadbolt has been peculiarly fortunate in the choice of his help-meets. To the wife of his youth and the one who cared for him in his declining years, no sacrifice was too great when his comfort and the happiness of his home were involved.

times, the pioneer of a state in making, and the citizen of a republic land these sixty years; taps have sounded. May the reveille of an eternal morning bring him peace.

Funeral services were held at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock. They were conducted by the Rev. S. R. Robinson, former pastor. Rev. Mr. McKim of the Methodist church offered prayer. Two songs, "Asleep In Jesus", and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" were sung by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bohstedt, Mrs. A. E. Johnson and Cecil Myers with Mrs. Ethel Davkins Carter at the piano.

Attending the funeral in a body were the members of the Relief Corps of the Grand Army and Mrs. Shadbolt's Sunday School Class, the Loyal Daughters.

Bearers were George L. Brown, John Alley, O. J. Worcester, J. N. Hartzell, George Manor and Charles Evans.

It had been Mr. Shadbolt's wish that his funeral sermon should be preached from the text: "Be Ye Also Ready" and he had also requested that the talk should not be one referring so much to his past life as an exhortation to the living to live lives which would fit them for the eternal home in heaven.

Present from away to attend the funeral were: Mrs. Emma Nelson of Eldora; Mr. and Mrs. James Nelson and Brentt Blood of Des Moines; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Graham and son Robert of Marshalltown; R. E. Brownlie of Davaport; Brownlie Graham and family, Wm. Morrison and wife and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore of Brooklyn.

Burial was in the cemetery at Brooklyn, on the side of his first wife. A very brief service was held at the grave in charge of Mr. Neckim, Grand Army honors were accorded the old veteran, the flag being placed on the coffin just before the body was lowered into the grave by James S. Rollins, a veteran and close friend of the deceased man.

Mr. Shadbolt's life typifies the enduring character of the pioneer. His parents were pioneers in Michigan and also in Wisconsin where he grew to manhood. Again in Scott County he followed the life of a hardy pioneer of earnest character who loved the right because it was right and who strove at all times to live as his Master would have him to live.

Coming to Madison Township in 1873 before it was fully settled up he was a pioneer also in this county and so endured during two-thirds of his years the life which early settlers have always lived.

ELLIOTT SHADBOLT

2015 will mark the 150th anniversary of the end of America's Civil War. Grinnell Historical Museum volunteers Karen Groves, Ann Igoe, Julie Young and Shane Estes have created biographies of men who were participants in a local project just after World War I to photograph Civil War veterans. The Nina Wayne Grau Studio photographed the Grinnell veterans in 1922. Over 200 Civil War veterans are buried in Hazlet Wood Cemetery, including most of the veterans photographed in 1922. Here is one of those portraits and biographies:

Elliott Shadbolt was born March 15, 1843, in Lapeer County, Mich., and moved with his parents to New York in 1851. In 1854 the family moved to Fond du Lac, Wis., where he lived on a farm until 1859. He went to Washington County, Mo., for a few months in 1859 and then moved to Scott County in 1860 where he attended school and engaged in farming.

In the spring of 1861 he returned to Wisconsin where he answered Lincoln's call and enlisted in Company I of the Fifth Wisconsin Volunteers. The unit was sent east and employed in construction of fortifications around Washington, D.C., during the remainder of that year.

In 1862 and 1863 Shadbolt's unit participated in many of the legendary actions in Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, including the Peninsula Campaign and the battles at Antietam, Fredericksburg and Gettysburg. He was wounded in the leg at Rappahannock Station, Va., and recovered out of action until April of 1864.

His unit then participated in the progression of battles fought in Virginia between the armies of Generals Grant and Lee which led ultimately to Lee's surrender, including the battles of the Wilderness, Spotsylvania Courthouse and Cold Harbor as well as the siege of Petersburg.

After discharge Shadbolt returned to Wisconsin and then to Scott County where he resumed farming.

Elliott Shadbolt married Isabella M. Brownlie on May 14, 1873, and brought his bride to a farm in Madison Township near Brooklyn. They had one son, Alexander.

The Shadbolts retired in 1903 and moved to 608 High St. in Grinnell where Isabella died in 1915. Shadbolt was married to Jennie Blood on April 11, 1918.

Shadbolt had joined the Baptist Church at Fond du Lac at the age of 13 and had been a communicant ever since in either a Baptist or a Christian church, depending on which was located where he was then living. His obituary said that "the marked purity of his life amid the temptations of the camps won for him the nickname of Chaplain among his comrades."

Shadbolt died March 20, 1925, at the age of 82 years and 5 days. He was buried at Brooklyn IOOF Cemetery with his first wife.
