STUDENTS' CORPS HIT

Pneumonia Takes a Fateful Toll from the S. A. T. C. of Grinnell College.

FEAR GRIPS THE CITY: THAT END IS NOT YET

Six Young Men Are in Hospital, One Only Rebuilding in the Community.

During the early weeks of the ravages of the influenza epidemic throughout the country the S. A. T. C. of Grinnell College were treated with leniency by the local authorities and not a single death was reported in the community. Several days ago, however, pneumonia seemed to be the precursor of a second visitation of the influenza which struck the campus hard and attacked hard. Within four days of the breach it had spread to all of the halls, and the hospitalization of the entire personnel of the college was necessary. The local press has done its best to cover the story which was published as follows:

A death was made in the home of Miss Robert Blatt, the first to be reported. Below is the list of names of the dead and a complete story of the lives of those whom we have lost:

Donald A. McFarland

Donald A. McFarland, a member of the S. A. T. C. of Grinnell College, died at the city hospital last Sunday evening as the result of pneumonia. He was taken to the hospital from the home by Dr. R. H. B. Stevens, who was a relative. A. McFarland, of Winthrop, Mass., was born at Grinnell, Iowa, in January, 1896. For several years the family has lived at Winthrop, Mass. He has been graduated from the high school. He lived at home until last fall. He was sent with the others to the S. A. T. C. The body was brought to Grinnell by the train on Monday evening. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon.
