11-19 Mrs. W. T. Carlisle. 1907

The funeral of the late Mrs. William T. Carlisle, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Noble, after prolonged illness, Friday morning, was conducted by the Rev. H. N. Dascomb at the residence Sunday afternoon. Beautiful music was furnished by the Iowa College male quartette. The remains were taken yesterday to her old home at Norwich for burial, Professor and Mrs. Noble accompanying them east.

Mrs. Carlisle was in her eighty-fourth year and had lived a remarkable life. Blessed with the noble qualities of kindness, patience, and natural refinement, these attributes found expression in her fine features and won the hearts of those who came to know her even in a passing way.

She was a woman of strong mind and strong character and retained her keen intellectual powers to an unusual degree. No one could see her or talk with her for a moment without being impressed by her innate culture.

In her daughter's home she found a delightful and congenial place of rest in her advancing years and there her sweet and gracious presence left its benediction not only on the inmates of the home but on the people of this city who came to know her and who felt, even if but briefly, the charm of a blameless life.
