Cecil A. Elliott was born at Washington, Ind., October 3, 1878. She died at her late home at 715 Broad St., Grinnell, Iowa, on Friday, September 4, 1931. She and her mother Mrs. Mary Elliott had been engaged in the millinery business here for 28 years. Her father A. A. Elliott died a few years ago. Her brother Zibe B. Elliott died at Newport News, Va., while engaged in the service of his country before the Armistice was signed.

The Elliott family came to Grinnell to reside in 1880 when Cecil was an infant of two years. She spent her entire life here. She was a member of the Congregational church, of the Rebekah lodge and an enthusiastic member of the local Legion Auxiliary. She was known by a great number of people and was universally loved and respected.

When a small child Cecil suffered a severe attack of diphtheria which caused gland infection and has never been in really robust health. She failed very rapidly in the last few weeks, having been confined to her home but a short time preceding her death.

Her brother, Raleigh A. Elliott, who has long been engaged in the railway mail service, arrived early Saturday morning and has been here with his mother since. His home is in Peoria, Ill.
