PRESS RELEASE

From: Stewart Library, Monique Shore

Subject: Clarification regarding article "Library goes online with a raft of new services" which appeared on June 12th

Date: June 17, 2003

In the article about the new online resources available from Stewart Library it was implied that a password is required to access all resources. For the purpose of clarification, we submit the following information.

- All information from the library's webpage is accessible to anyone. This includes the obituary database, oral history project, and historical photographs.
- The online catalog may be searched by anyone. In order to access personal account information or to place holds, a patron barcode and pin number must be entered.
- Each of the subscription online reference resources, including the magazine index and biography resources, require a password, which is obtainable from the library.
