ANDREW MCINTOSH.

POP 361

More than forty years have passed since Andrew McIntosh became identified in a humble capacity with mercantile business at Grinnell. Today he is a leading merchant of the city, being at the head of one of the most flourishing concerns in this part of the state. Courage, zeal and unremitting persistence are the keys that have enabled him to unlock the portals of fortune. He is a native of Scotland, and was born October 18, 1824, a son of Robert and Margaret (McCarthy) McIntosh, who were both natives of Scotland. They were married in the old country and in 1852 crossed the ocean to America in search of a permanent home. After a short stay in Ohio they came to Montezuma, Poweshiek county, Iowa, where the father was in the employ for a number of years of P. A. Kilborn. He died in 1881 at the age of thirty-nine years. The beloved mother's death occurred in 1863, when she had arrived at the age of thirty-three years.

Andrew McIntosh was reared at Montezuma, but received limited advantages of education as his parents were poor and his assistance was needed in the support of the family. At the age of thirteen years he became a clerk in the store of Mr. Kilborn and continued there for four years, acquiring the foundation of a training that proved of great value to him in later life. In January, 1871, he arrived at Grinnell and went to work in the store of S. S. Preston, with which he continued for four years. Having determined to embark in business for himself he formed a partnership with F. O. Proctor, under the title of McIntosh & Proctor, and opened a mercantile establishment in January, 1877. They continued for two and one-half years together and he then withdrew his interest to his partner, but shortly afterward he and Walter F. Hanson purchased the business from Mr. Proctor and conducted it under the name of McIntosh & Hanson. In 1882 Mr. McIntosh withdrew from the firm and the same year associated with D. S. Morrison in the manufacture of gloves. This work, however, did not prove as satisfactory to Mr. McIntosh as the general mercantile business, and, although he retained his interest in the concern, he organized in 1889 the dry goods firm of A. McIntosh & Company, which has continued in uninterrupted existence up to the present time. There have been several changes in partners but no change has been made in the style of the firm, which is one of the oldest mercantile institutions in the city and has a reputation extending throughout central Iowa. On January 1, 1908, and has a reputation extending throughout central Iowa. On January 1, 1908, Mr. McIntosh severed his connection with the glove manufacturing business and has since devoted his entire attention to mercantile affairs.

In 1879 he was united in marriage to Miss Addie C. Ricker of Grinnell, a daughter of Edward Ricker, who came to this city from Scott county, Iowa. Eight children have been born to this union, six of whom are now living. Eight children have been born to this union, six of whom are now living. Mr. McIntosh gives his support to the republican party but has never aspired to political honors, as his attention has been mainly devoted to private affairs. He is a member of the Commercial Club of Grinnell and takes an active interest in its work. He has for years been an ardent advocate for closing the season at 6 o'clock in the evening, and through his agitation and persistence the consent of the business men was many times secured and the season of Grinnell closed their doors promptly at that hour. Mr. McIntosh has been remarkably successful in business and has many friends in Grinnell and Poweshiek county, who do not hesitate to declare that he is one of the most capable, trustworthy and progressive business men in their entire circle of acquaintances.

into his thriving business career. He was married and completely lost his characteristic courage he moved into the Grinnell Wire Factory, which is the Rock Island "track" remaining there until November 15, when they sold the stock and new quarters at the old wire works. All final affairs were completed in his employ since 1887 under the firm name of A. McIntosh & Co. Later he and Mrs. Addie McIntosh (Ricker) moved into a residence on Grinnell street, where they remained until 1915, when they sold the residence to A. A. Stone. Since 1915, as a home for "retirement" having career as a business man, he came here for a number of years, being actively engaged in selling wire for the firm, and later being in the city of Iowa, where he was born. He was a devoted citizen and a member of the Grinnell Presbyterian church. He was a pioneer in the mercantile business and a successful entrepreneur.
