

Morris A. Vols, 90, of Grinnell, died Sunday, Sept. 22, 2013, at Grinnell Regional Medical Center following an extended illness.

Mass of Christian burial has been scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 26, at St. Patrick's Church in Brooklyn, with Father Brian Shepley officiating. Burial will be in Brooklyn's Calvary Cemetery. A memorial fund has been established.

Morris was born Dec. 10, 1922, in Belle Plaine, the son of Henry and Julia Van Lierde Vols, and attended Walnut Creek schools in rural Chelsea. He married Louise Kaplan on Jan. 31, 1948, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Brooklyn. He began farming in rural Belle Plaine, then moved north of Brooklyn where he and Louise farmed the rest of their married lives until they retired and moved to Grinnell.

Morris was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Brooklyn and attended St. Mary's Catholic Church in Grinnell until his health prevented him from doing so. Morris loved his dog Rinney and playing checkers with family and friends.

He is survived by his four children, David Vols of Ankeny, Ronald Vols of Grinnell, Ilene Hagen of Knoxville, and Lilly Sesma of Cedar Falls; five grandchildren; and three great grandchildren.

Morris was preceded in death by his parents, his wife Louise in 2010.
