

of processed foods.

FRANK HARDING DIES MAR. 18 IN TENNESSEE

Was A Former Successful Grinnell Business Man.

Frank Harding, former Grinnell monument dealer and picturesque character, who built the Harding block on Main street in which the Reynolds Tailor Shop is now located, died in a hospital in Knoxville, Tenn., Tuesday, March 18, as a result of a heart attack suffered the preceding day. He had been owner of the Harding Monument Co. in Knoxville for the past 15 years and was widely known throughout east Tennessee. In addition to his monument business he had also operated a grocery store in Knoxville for the past 10 years. He had been in declining health for the past five years. He was 65 years old.

A native of Texas, Mr. Harding traveled for a wholesale granite firm in Ohio before establishing his business in Grinnell.

On Dec. 9, 1926, Mr. Harding was married to Mrs. Lulu Rankin Newman who was at his bedside when he passed away. There are no children. Survivors beside the widow are a sister, Mrs. E. C. Collins of Ardmore, Okla., a nephew and two nieces.

Mr. Harding was a member of the Central Methodist church of Knoxville and the Woodmen of the World.

COOPER GIVEN DISCHARGE

Ernest Cooper, who has been stationed at Camp Honner, Cal., has received an honorable discharge.