—Will and see the novelties made by the American and Canadian Indians at Baird & Wilcox's furniture store. 16-2

—Mrs. Phoebe (Gray) Davis was born in Pelham, Massachusetts, May 25, 1806. Her family was of Scotch-Irish Presbyterian stock, her grandfather, Deacon Daniel Gray, being mentioned as a prominent character in Massachusetts colonial history. Her father, Collister Gray, held a commission in the federal army during the war with England in 1812. Her mother's maiden name was Hannah Calhoun. In her early youth she removed, with her parents, to Madison county, N. Y., where, on February 18, 1829, she was married to Paul Stowell, who died September 14, 1830. One son born from this union, Paul Jasper Stowell, is still living, at Garner, Iowa. In 1834 Mrs. Stowell was married to ~~Isaac~~ Davis, and soon after removed to Otselec, Chenango county, N. Y. Here three children were born: Martha J., wife of James Crownover, of Wynette, Illinois; Harrison T., of Grinnell, and Minnie H., wife of John Goodfellow, of Grinnell. In 1852 Mr. and Mrs. Davis removed to Princeton, Ill., and in 1866, to Poweshiek county, Iowa. Mr. Davis died nearly twenty years ago, and for the last seven years "Grandma" Davis, as many loved to call her, has made her home in Grinnell, with Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow. She was the last surviving member of her father's family. Death found her on her ninety-second birthday, at the same hour as that in which her husband departed this life, nearly twenty years ago. The funeral occurred at the home of Mr. Goodfellow, at ten o'clock this morning, conducted by Rev. E. M. Vittum.

—Don't forget the Busy Bees' festival which comes next Saturday, May 28, from 3:30 to 6:00 p. m. Come and bring the little folks. Admission, ten cents.
