

12-10 FRED J. ROSE 1920

Fred J. Rose was born in Cassopolis, Michigan, July 9, 1883, and passed away December 4, 1920. He came to Grinnell about thirteen years ago, and was married December 25, 1907, to Zora G. Wilder, who, with their son Harold, survives him. Besides his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John

Wilder, to whom he was a devoted son, he leaves one sister, who has been unable to leave her home in Michigan on account of the illness of her husband.

Mr. Rose was an industrious man and had been employed at one time in the Spaulding factory. Later he was a clerk in the grocery department of Cady's store. The last two or three years he has worked in the Ford garage. He made warm and lasting friends among the people with whom he dealt. He will be remembered by his family as a kind and loving husband and father, by his comrades in the shop as a considerate and cheery companion, by his neighbors as a helpful friend, and by the community as a good citizen.

The funeral services were held at the home, 1011 Seventh Avenue, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by Mrs. George Wodehouse, reader of the Christian Science Society. The music was furnished by a male quartet of college men. The pall bearers were members of his lodge—the Yeomen.
