8-22 OBITUARY, 1905
WARREN P. WALLACE.

Warren P. Wallace, who died at his home on south Park street on August 16, 1905 was born at Cohocton, N. Y., on September 10, 1825, and so was nearly eighty years old. In 1855 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Lobdell and in the same year came to this struggling little town out on the Iowa prairies. To this union were born eight children. The mother, seven children and four grand children remain to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband, parent and grandfather.

He passed away last Wednesday afternoon after a lingering illness. The funeral services were held from the late residence and his own sons acted as pall bearers.

Mr. Wallace has for many years been a familiar figure on the streets of this city, having been one of the early settlers in Grinnell. Indeed if he had lived until October he would have celebrated the fiftieth anniversary both of his marriage and of his coming to this city. In all these years he has borne a spotless reputation and has led a good life. In the dark days of the early sixties he joined the Union forces to fight for the country he loved; his health was undermined and during after life he never fully recovered from the effects of his army experience. Consequently he led a quiet life but one which left only an honored name and a loving memory to his children.

His comrades in the G. A. R. and his many friends will miss the sight of his familiar form on our streets but those who were near and dear to him and who cherish his memory will rest in the knowledge that in answering the last muster he has joined the better and brighter army of eternal peace.
